A DRAWN BATTLE.

The Prize Fight Between Havlin and Murphy a Draw After Forty-Nine Rounds of Hard Slugging.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2—The international fight between Frank Murphy, of England, and Jack Havlin, of Boston, for $1,000 a side, came off this morning at at Verplanack's Point, on the Hudson river, and ended in a draw.

The men fought forty-nine rounds, taking three hours and fifteen minutes. There were about fifty spectators.

From the first the men fought hard. Havlin got in the first blow on Murpny's chest and before it was returned landed another on his cheek and a third blow on Murphy's neck as time was called. In the third round the first blood was claimed and allowed for Murphy.

The fight went on with the advantages gained by either alienating in almost every round and neither obtaining any advantage sufficient to change the betting, which continued even throughout.

The forty seventh round was the severest in the battle, considering the condition the men were then in. Havlin was staggering around the ring and Murphy was too weak to take advantage of his condition.

At the end of the forty-ninth round it was plain that neither had sufficient strength to continue the fight and the referee decided the fight a draw. His decision was considered by all to be the only one possible.

It was difficult to say which of the men was the most badly used up.

IN DEEP DOUBT.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 2.—Yesterday the republicans seemed to be taking a rest and the Shelbyville conventions served for a time to distract their attention from the consideration of the gubernatorial question. Around headquarters an air of quiet prevailed. This was not wholly indicative of quiescence on the part of the managers, for they were very busy, but in a mysterious, behind-the-door way. All sorts of schemes were being hatched up.

Rhody Shiel was still howling vociferously for Porter and so were a good many others, but it was notable that they were mostly friends of Harrison rather than of Porter. This fact caused a great deal of comment. It was considered remarkable that a presidential candidate should be relying upon the strength of the local ticket to carry his own state for him. Heretofore, when Hendricks was on the national ticket, for instance, the party has counted upon the national ticket to help the state ticket, and the desperation with which republicans are insisting on Porter's nomination is generally regarded as a confession of Harrison's weakness. Porter still gives no evidence of yielding to the pressure being brought to bear upon him.

Among the other candidates it seems generally conceded that Col. Robertson will come into the convention with more positive strength than any other candidate, but it is not believed that he will have enough to nominate. It is also predicted that the Porter element will fight Robertson bitterly and secure his defeat. By Robertson's friends this is regarded as rank ingratitude for the colonel was about the only Harrison man in Allen county. Now that Porter is out of the way Robertson is gaining strength rapidly, and it is said large delegations will be here by Sunday in his behalf.

Congressman Steele is still regarded as the coming man. John C. New's declaration that Hovey will win, is regarded as a good joke, for New is well known to be for Steele and his crowd which has never taken kindly to Porter is working tooth and nail for Steele. Cumback still talks Porter, and says he wouldn't take the nomination. Chase and the other small fry are only incidentally mentioned.

BARTLEY CAMPBELL.

The Distinguished Play-wright Buried at Pittsburg To-day.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 2.—The remains of Bartley Campbell arrived at 1 o'clock this morning and were interred in the St. Mary's cemetery a few hours later. The body was first taken to St. Paul's cathedral, where the casket was opened and thousands of friends paid tribute.

The pall-bearers were, Wm. Ramsey, of the Globe; John A. Hazelett and W. N. Fullwood, of the Leader; C. E. Locke, of the Press and F. P. Case, formerly of the Cincinnati Gazette They were all old newspaper men, long and intimately acquainted with the dead dramatist.

Fires.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Aug. 2—The Little, Craft & Co.'s mills were destroyed by fire last night. Loss, $100,000; insurance, $60,000.

Suspended.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 2.—The state insurance has shut up the New York Safety Reserve Fund association. Liabilities, $43,161.27 and total assets $12.28.

ASIATIC CHOLERA.

Three Thousand Deaths From it in Foreign Lands—The Deadly Work of a Volcano.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—The steamship Arabic, arrived here last night from Hong Kong and Japan. The cholera in Amoy seems for the time to be held in check, but at Chang Chon it is reported that 3,000 deaths have occurred in the past sixty days.

The volcano of Mount Iwahassis suddenly burst into activity and in a short time fifty six houses in Iwasenura were destroyed. On July 16 the eruption was still continued with great destruction and loss of life. About 400 persons and thirty houses in a village called Bira, were buried under the sand and the ashes thrown out by the volcano. Among those buried were some fifteen visitors at the hot springs in the neighborhood.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The Turkish government has sent a protest to the powers against the occupation of Massowah by Italy.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—President and M'me. Carnot met with an ovation, yesterday, on arriving at Fontainbleau, where they will spend the summer.

MADRID, Aug. 2.—A pillar of the Cathedral at Seville fell, causing a portion of the roof of the nave to collapse. The falling debris destroyed the organ and did other damage to the Cathedral.

VIENNA, Aug. 2.—The jury trials in the cases of the anarchists in Austria and Hungary have been suspended one year.

AN ITALIAN OUTBREAK.

They Strike for Higher Pay and Threaten to Hang the Paymaster.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 2.—Two hundred Italian laborers on the Mahoning railroad, near Findlay, struck for higher wages and were discharged. They demanded their pay. They were so boisterous that Hyjenero, the paymaster, hesitated about producing the money. The strikers procured a rope and were about to hang him when the sheriff appeared with a posse and rescued him. There is great excitement and fears of another outbreak.

OUR BANNER.

The National Democratic Committee Adopt the "Flag Bandana" as a Campaign Banner.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The national democratic committee has adopted as a campaign banner and badge the "flag bandana," designed and patented by Jos. M. Jones, Paris. It is a typical bandana and has stars and stripes stamped in its center and corner. This announcement was made yesterday by Chairman Wm. H. Barnum.

IT'S A SUCCESS.

The Third Well at the Water Works Basin a Gusher.

The third supply well at the water works basin was tested this morning and is a success. It will flow 250,000 gallons in twenty-four hours. The well will be officially inspected this week and the work of sinking others will go on.

State Chess Tournament

GREENCASTLE, Aug. 2.—Notwithstanding the intense heat, the interest in the chess tournament does not abate. Several prominent players arrived last night and the hall is filled with visitors. The games so far played have been won in the major class, as follows: Brown, five; Louis, two; Prof. E Marquis, five; Maj. Mulkey, two; Ripley, two; and Tomlinson, six. In the minor class Tague has won ten, Marquis, jr., three; Teister four; Johnson, ten; Gordon, three; Blake, six; and Bachelder, three.

Broke the Record.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—The steamship Owego accomplished the great feat of breaking the record on its run from Buffalo to Chicago on her last trip coming up in sixty-three hours and fifteen minutes. The best previous time was sixty-three hours and fifty minutes, made by the steamship Tioga at the opening of the season.

The Centennial Exhibition.

MELBOURNE, Aug. 2.—In his speech at the opening of the centennial exhibition yesterday, Governor Loch concluded by quoting the words of the address delivered at the opening of the Philadelphia exhibition in 1876.

A LOVE TRAGEDY.

May Patton Shoots Her Lover at a Pittsburg Hotel and Then Sends a Bullet Into Her Own Brain.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 2.—Shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, May Patton, of Johnstown, Pa., shot and killed Charles DeKnight, a well known young man of Lawrenceville, and then blew her own brains out. The tragedy took place in the Metropolitan hotel. The cause will probably never be known.

The couple called at the hotel this morning and DeKnight registered as C. Lewis and wife, of Johnstown, Pa. They were given a room and nothing more heard from them until 9 o'clock, when the guests were startled by a report of two pistol shots in quick succession.

It is supposed they quarreled and DeKnight was about to leave the room when he was shot. The door was locked. Both have moved in good society. The girl has always borne a good reputation, was handsome and about twenty years of age.

DeKnight was a Pullman car conductor and lived with his parents in Lawrenceville. He was about twenty four years old A letter was found from the girl addressed, Jessie Thurlow, Huntingdon, Pa. It stated she was going to commit suicide.

HAD THE GLANDERS.

A Dangerous and Fatal Horse Disease Prevalent.

Yesterday two well developed cases of glanders were discovered in this city. One of the horses, "Jim Smith," was owned by Willis Pearse, the other was Frank Gruber's bay horse.

Some time ago the horses suffered from from swoolen feet and ulcers, a disease prevailed generally then. This seems to have developed into glanders in the cases named. The disease was diagnosed by Dr. A. J. Read and Supt. McNutt, of the street car service.

The horses were then promptly shot. Mr. Pearse had his horse out in pasture, while Gruber had his at his home.

The state law imposes a fine of $500 for maintaining or transferring from one place to another a horse afflicted with glanders, which is characterized by veterpary surgeons as a contagious and very destructive disease of the mucous membrane in horses, characterized by a constant discharge of sticky matter from the nose and an enlargement and induration of the glands beneath and within the lower jaw. It is sometimes communicated to man by contact with glandered animals and is always fatal. There are no other afflicted horses in the city as far as known.

WE CAN HAVE IT.

The Postal Telegraph Line is a Pretty Sure Thing.

Mayor Muhler and Mr. J. Pottlitzer, who went to Chicago to interview the officers of the Postal Telegraph company relative to extending their line to Fort Wayne, are at home.

Mr. Muhler says they were nicely received by Supt. Parker, who assured them that he would send his representatives here to look over the field.

"If they can get into the city and obtain a right-of-way from Auburn, they will send their line here certain," said the mayor.

UP AGAIN.

Dr. J. M. Dinnen Exempt from Water Taxes

This morning Dr. J. M. Dinnen protested against the further collection of water works rentals from him this year, as the trustees have sufficient funds to operate the works. Dr. Dinnen will therefore come under the pale of the recent injunction issued by Judge O'Rourke.

It is said that other water takers will do likewise and save a half years rent.

COMING THICK.

Another Suit for $10,000 Against the Pennsylvania Company.

A Patent Leather Trust.

NEWARK, O., Aug. 2.—The Patent Leather Manufacturers' association of the United States yesterday resolved to advance the price of goods from ten to fifteen per cent. All contracts at old rates must expire by the 31st of December. All but four of the leather firms in the country are in the combination.

THUNDER STORMS.

Many Houses Struck by Lightning—Fields of Wheat Under Water and Much Damage Done.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., Aug. 2.—During the thunder storm, last evening, Julia Whalen, aged fifteen years, was killed, and Alice Fleming, aged ten years, badly shocked, while running for shelter. Curiously enough both were wounded in the throat as if cut with a dull knife.

Aaron Applegate and S. W. Cox, guards at the prison south, were knocked off the walls, and the roof of prison foundry torn off.

Mrs. Ed Cummins and George Aldridge were struck and rendered unconscious.

A number of houses were more or less damaged.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 2.—Specials from St. Cloud and Sauk Rapids, Minn., state that the most terrific thunder storm occurred last night and that torrents of rain fell from 10 p. m. until 4 o'clock this morning.

The Mississippi rose a foot and at the dam eight feet. Many houses were struck by lightning. Whole fields of wheat are under water and washed out. Many houses are flooded and can only be reached by boats. The damage will be many thousand dollars.

QUITE AN HONOR.

Hon. William Fleming to Have Charge of the Financial Management of the Indiana Campaign.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Ex-State Treasurer Fleming, of Indiana, by special invitation of the president, arrived yesterday morning and spent the afternoon at the white house. It is stated by Indiana democrats that the president has asked Mr. Fleming to take charge of the financial branch of the campaign in the Hoosier state, and that he is to receive special instructions from Senator Gorman, who will also be located at Indianapolis for some time during the campaign.

The News as Flashed Over the Wires From the National Capital—The Day in Congress.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The presiding officer announced the appointment of a select committee under the resolution in relation of the commerce and business between the United States and Canada as follows: Senators Hoar, Allison, Hale, Dolph, Pugh, Eustis and Blodgett, a conference committee ordered on the naval appropriation bill, and Senators Hale, Tarwell and Beck were appointed conferees.

Surgeon General Hampton, this morning, received a telegram from Surgeon Murry, of Tampa, Fla., that the first two suspicious cases of yellow fever occurred last evening and two others this morning. Manitee village is guarded by twenty-five men. Suspicious houses have been disinfected. Probably 100 persons are liable to take the fever. There is no panic among the people.

The fisheries treaty was taken up, the question being on Mr. Morgan's motion to postpone its further consideration till December next.

THE READY REVOLVER.

One Boy Kills Another at Lafayette With But Little Provocation.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Aug. 2.—What looks like a murder was committed here about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, Wm. Ellsworth, aged nineteen, being the victim. Ellsworth was fishing beneath the White river bridge. A number of half-grown boys, known as the "Dirty Dozen," sat on the bridge and threw pebbles in the water. Ellsworth remonstrated and threatened to thump them. He finally came up, and Oliver White, about his own age, drew a revolver and ordered him to stand off. Ellsworth laughed, and presently armed himself with a brick, when White again flourished his weapon and warned him to stand off. As Ellsworth raised his arm as if to throw, White fired, the ball striking Ellsworth about an inch above the navel. He fell and the thoroughly frightened boys ran for home. White, who did the shooting, cut across the bridge and started north along the river. Officers were in pursuit. Ellsworth lived but a few moments. He was a son of Dr. J. T. Ellsworth, a former physician here, now a resident of Independence. The boy was pretty wild.

WANTED.—Boarders at No. 71 West Superior street. Rates, $3.50 per week.

Why You Feel

So weak and exhausted is because your blood is impure. As well expect the sanitary condition of a city to be perfect with defiled water and defective sewerage, as to expect such a complicated piece of mechanism as the human frame to be in good order with impure blood circulating even to its minutest veins. Do you know that every drop of your two or three gallons of blood passes through the heart and lungs in about two and a half minutes, and that, on its way, it makes bone and muscle, brain and nerve, and all other solids and fluids of the body? The blood is the great nourisher, or, as the Bible terms it,

"The Life of the Body."

Is it any wonder, then, that if the blood be not pure and perfect in its constituents, you suffer so many indescribable symptoms?

Ayer's Sarsaparilla stands "head and shoulders" above every other Alterative and Blood Medicine. As proof, read these reliable testimonies:

G. C. Brock, of Lowell, Mass., says: "For the past 25 years I have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla. In my opinion, the best remedial agencies for the cure of all the diseases arising from impurities of the blood are contained in this medicine."

Eugene I. Hill, M. D., 381 Sixth Ave., New York, says: "As a blood-purifier and general builder-up of the system, I have never found anything to equal Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It gives perfect satisfaction."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla proves equally efficacious in all forms of Scrofula, Boils, Carbuncles, Eczema, Humors, Lumbago, Catarrh, &c.; and is, therefore, the very best

Spring and Family Medicine

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

does sell." Prepared by

GEN. LEW. WALLACE positively declines to be a republican candidate for governor. When the strongest men in the republican party decline the proffered honor, there is something radically wrong.

THAT high protective taxes make the monopolist manufacturers richer, heartless and greedy every laboring man knows. Do the high taxes make the working people correspondingly rich? Every intelligent toiler will answer no.

HIGH tax laws that prohibit fair competition in the markets of the nation empower the monopolists of the country to place extortionate prices on the goods they sell to the people. Witness the trusts and combinations at work.

IN detailing the recent nomination of Hon. Fred. J. Hayden for joint senator, the Columbia City Post says editorially: "Mr. Hayden served Allen county in the lower branch of the legislature several years ago and is a man of ability. He will receive the united support of the democracy of Whitley county."

GENERAL HARRISON said in one of his talks the other day: "The tariff should be revised not by its enemies but by its friends." This expression seems to have thrown the republican press into a pleasant mood. But the remark was used in Henry Clay's time and was old then, so that it only illustrates the general's memory.

The Chicago Times is exposing the iniquities inflicted upon the poor shop girls of Chicago who are compelled to bear insults and injury from cruel overseers and bosses for from seventeen to twenty three and one-half cents a day. Ask these poor creatures if a high protective tariff makes high wages and a pale face, pinched with hunger, will tell you "No." There are cases just like these in Fort Wayne.

THE Indianapolis News assures an expectant populace that General Harrison has not yet begun writing his letter of acceptance, and nothing can be learned as to when it will be given to the public. It concludes that there is no occasion for haste, and if it is not written for several weeks it will be no later than such documents usually are. The general might postpone it until December and publish it as a Christmas serial entitled "When I was a mid-summer idol."

Greater benefits may be derived from the vacation season if, at the same time, the blood is being cleansed and vitalized by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. An increase of appetite, vigor, and buoyancy of spirits attend the use of this medicine.

For Sale.

The Gazette's "Constant Reader" Enlightened.

To the Editor of The Sentinel.

Is it true that the cost of living is now greater than before the adoption of the protective tariff? To this question, asked by a constant reader, the Gazette economist in the issue of his "organ" for July 29th pretends to give an answer.

The pretended answer consists of four statements:

First—All manufactured goods are from 20 to 40 per cent. cheaper now than before 1860.

Second—That home manufactures are not more costly here than similar goods in free trade England.

Third—That the "statistics of wages and average prices of necessaries of life" in the census of 1888 lead to a negative answer to the question.

Fourth—That if the day's work be taken as the real purchasing factor, one day's work will purchase much more now than formerly.

As to the first statement the Gazette economist admits that the only proper question is, would manufactured goods be cheaper than they are here and now, if we had not so high a tariff? The proper test of this question, he says, is to compare prices here with the prices of goods of the same quality in free trade England. If the effect of our tariff is to enhance the cost of goods, then prices ought to be higher here than for similar articles there. Let us see, says our economist, what Mr. Schoenhof, himself a free trader and United States consul at Tunstall, England, has to say upon the point. This has the appearance of great candor. Out of the mouth of a free trader he is going to get the evidence to convict the revenue reformers of lying. Well, what does Mr. Schoenhof, himself a free trader, say? As far as appears from the Gazette economist's quotation, he says just this: Cotton goods, as shirtings, sheetings, muslin underwear for women, and factory made shoes and boots are fully as cheap in the United States as in England. He says that articles made to order are lower in England than here, as are also ready made articles, but that in these latter the difference is not so marked. And this is all, as far as appears from the Gazette economist's quotation, that Mr. Schoenhof, himself a free trader, says. Shirts, sheets and shoes are as cheap in the United States as in England. Truly this is a profound investigation of the question as to whether manufactured goods are cheaper here than in free trade England. The Gazette economist, like the artful dodger that he is, wanted to shirk an answer by suggesting that even free traders are obliged to concede the point at issue, although he perfectly well knew that Mr. Schoenhof is of an entirely different opinion.

Mr. Lathrop, republican consul of the United States, at Bristol, in 1884, says, (consul reports, 1884, vol. 1, p. 645) cheaper dress goods cost here about one-half as much as in the United States, and better dress goods about one third less than there. Consul Packard (p.691) says that Sunday suits cost from $4.86 to $7.29.

Consul Grinnell, at Bradford, says that overcoats cost $7.29 and tweed suits, $7.29.

When the Gazette economist was pointing out how much manufactures had been cheapened since 1860, he was exuberant in his list. Crockery-ware, woolen goods, including dress goods and carpets, silk goods, iron and steel commodities, edge tools, iron-ware, farming implements, furniture, all, he exclaims, are cheaper than in 1860. If our tariff enhances the cost of goods, all these things ought, he says, to be cheaper in free trade England than here. But now, let us see, he says with argumental mien, what Consul Schoenhof, himself a free trader, says upon this point. Why, he says, shirts, sheets and shoes are as cheap in the United States as in England. Does it not follow then that crockery-ware and steel rails, dress goods and plows, carpets and edge tools are as cheap here as in England? And with such an answer he seems to think "constant reader" will be abundantly satisfied. But he may not be satisfied. He may ask how is it that in the year ending June, 1887, there were imported into this country 77,000 tons of steel rails which after paying $17 per ton duty were actually sold in competition with American rails? Were those rails bought by the foolish rich who would have them merely because they were foreign? or were they bought by shrewd business men who make every dollar count? Could they have been sold unless the price of American rails had been nearly $17 higher than the price of the foreign rails? Must it not follow that the 1,579,000 tons of American rails, made and sold during that same year, cost in tribute to their monopolist makers about $26,000,000? and must it not be true that on this $26,000,000 and on all the other millions that have in the past twenty years been paid in like tribute, the American people must continue to pay, in the way of higher freight, both interest and profits.

If the Gazette's "Constant Reader," or any one else wishes really to know whether American made goods are enhanced in cost by the duty, let him ask any merchant tailor what first-class English worsteds cost. He will find that he can not buy the latter for one cent less than the former cost, duty and all, Captain White and the Gazette economist to the contrary notwithstanding.

And now as to the Gazette economists third statement, that the census report of 1880 leads to a negative answer to our question. The statement simply is not true. Neither in the census of 1880 nor anywhere else under heaven or among men can he find any official statistics that show or tend to show that the cost of living is less in these United States then it was in 1860.

The tables of the census showing the average price of the necessaries of life are compiled from reports furnished by business men in all parts of the country. These reports give prices for each year from 1851, in many cases, down to and including 1880. The prices cover seven articles under the head of dry goods, all common meats and groceries, and also rent, board, wood, coal and men's heavy boots. I have made a careful examination of these tables, with the following results:

House rent, board, wood, coal, and boots are shown by these reports to have advanced since 1860 from 15 to 40 per cent. Flour, codfish, coffee, tea, sugar, beef, beans, mutton and potatoes are shown to have advanced 25 per cent. There is a very small fraction of decrease in the cost of cotton articles mentioned under the head of dry goods.

In the statistics of wages in the woolen industry there are given tables, made by the manufacturers themselves, showing the selling price of their products in various years. In every instance where prices are given for 1860 and 1880, the price is the same as in 1860, or higher, except that in one instance jeans which sold for 55 cents in 1860 sold for 40 cents in 1880. In two instances, even the war prices of 1865 and 1866 had not been lowered in 1880. They had the war tax and were selling at war prices. These are the exact facts about the "mass of statistics" that the Gazette economist says tend to show a lower cost of living in 1880 than in 1860.

Nor is this all. Mr. C. D. Wright, secretary of the Massachusetts bureau of labor and statistics, has officially shown that the cost of the necessaries of life rose in Massachusetts 41.3 per cent. between 1860 and 1880. He has also shown that in 1888 clothing averaged 45 per cent. higher in Massachusetts than in England, dry goods 13 per cent. higher, fuel 60, and groceries 23. Mr. Wright was not hired by the Cobden club to compile these figures in the interests of the wily free trader. He was simply an intelligent and skilled servant of the state of Massachusetts.

And now as to the increasing purchasing power of a day's work. Wages were, according to the census reports of 1860 and 1880, as follows in the industries named:

	1860	1880
Woolen goods	$234	$300
Glass	330	380
Iron and steel	355	390
Cotton	200	246

These are among the most heavily protected industries and they show an advance in wages from 1860 to 1880 of 28, 16, 10 and 23 per cent respectively. This advance was all secured in time of war when labor was scarce and competition limited, and even if that advance had been maintained it has been outstripped by the advance in the cost of necessaries of life. But it has not been maintained. Since 1870, down even to the present hour there has been a continual falling off in wages in the great protected industries, as the following figures show:

	1870	1880
Glass	$429	$380
Lumber	245	215
Cotton	313	246
Iron and steel	463	399

Wages for 1870 are reduced to a gold basis. According to Mr. Wright, wages fell off 5.4 per cent. from 1872 to 1883, while in free trade Great Britain, they increased 9.7 per cent.

The last annual report of the bureau of statistics for the state of Illinois shows that in twelve protected industries of that state the average decrease in wages from 1880 to 1886 was 18 per cent.

In the face of facts and figures like these the Gazette economist impudently declares that only the mendacious or the ignorant assert that the cost of living is made greater by our doomed war tariff. Even handed justice commends the ingredients of the poisoned chalice to his own lips.

Yours respectfully,

"Nearly Everybody Reads It."

The Merchant reads the Chicago Daily News because he must know what's going on in the great business centres of the world, and he can't waste time hunting for it in a "blanket sheet."

The Farmer reads the Chicago Daily News because he makes more than $3.00 a year—one cent a day—by keeping promptly posted on the variations of the market,—he doesn't wait for the slow weeklies any more.

The Mechanic reads the Chicago Daily News because he knows that even in [illegible] the more general intelligence a man has [illegible] he'll earn. The workingman can well afford a daily paper at "one cent a day."

Grandfather reads the Chicago Daily News because it gives all the news, and yet so condensed that it doesn't tire him out to read it. And then, the print is so clear.

Mother reads the Chicago Daily News because she wants to keep up with her husband in general information, and then she particularly enjoys the household hints and things of special interest to women which are in it every day.

Grandmother reads the Chicago Daily News because she still wants to know what's going on. And it's a comfort to see a daily paper in the family that's clean and pure,—one she's not afraid to have "the children see."

The Boys all want the Chicago Daily News because it gives the base ball news so fully,—to say nothing of all the other things boys enjoy. And this year even the boys don't skip the political news.

The Politician always reads the Chicago Daily News because its an impartial paper, and whether he likes its independent views or not, he wants to know the truth. He "supports" his particular party "organ," but when he wants cold facts he reads the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS.

The Girls all read the Chicago Daily News because they're specially interested in its chatty gossips about fashions and home matters, to say nothing about the excellent serial story always running.

In the Carpet Mill.

If brussels carpet is to be made the yarn goes to the dyeroom; but if it is to be made into tapestry, then it goes to the printer. When dyed, of course, each yarn is of one color throughout. When printed every yarn is of one color for a certain length, perhaps half an inch, then another for perhaps a quarter of an inch, and so on. The dye-house is a picturesque place. It is filled with clouds of steam that roll from the caldrons, over which half-naked men are stooping, lifting stout rods covered with hanks of yarn in and out of the boiling dye. When the workman thinks the yarn has acquired the right color he submits a skein of it to the chief dyer. If he passes it the batch of yarn is steamed in order to "set" the dye, and is then washed and dried in another hot room, and then the yarn is at last ready for the loom.

A Brussels carpet usually contains five colors. This is accomplished by filling five "frames" with spools of yarn, each frame being filled with yarn of one color. The threads are carried from each spool through the "heddle" to the loom. Above, the "jacquard," a part of the machine of intricate construction, determines just which threads are raised at a particular moment so as to appear in the pattern. Thus Brussels is woven, the pattern growing like magic as the shuttle flies back and forth, every part of the complicated machinery of the loom moving at its appointed time and place as if inspired with intelligence.

The printing process is even more wonderful. Imagine a huge drum on which the yarn is wound. Beneath it runs a carriage carrying a kind of brush loaded with color. The color is changed as required by a boy. The operator turns the drum to a certain point, and at a signal the carriage rolls across under the drum, painting a narrow strip of color. The drum moves a notch and the color brush flies back again, doubling the width of the strip. The operator follows the pattern before him, and he must follow it neatly. If he makes the strip of color too wide, and if the color be dark, so that another cannot be printed over it, the whole drum of yarn is spoiled and the blunderer is fined $1.

When the yarn has all been printed it is steamed, washed, and dried, and then reeled. Now, it must be "set" according to the pattern. This is a process requiring much patience and exactness, and the nimble fingers of girls are employed to do it. When a pattern is "set," it is rolled on a cylinder and then each thread must be fixed into its proper place in the loom. Then the weaving begins and the carpet commences to grow, every dot of color coming exactly where it should to bring out the pattern clearly and distinctly. The most wonderful thing about the loom is the "wire" movement. The machinery pulls out from a woven carpet a wire, armed with a blade at its end. This blade cuts the wool, and thus makes the "pile." Then the wire is pushed back and again thrust into the warp, the whole movement being accomplished with lightning-like rapidity.

The carpet must then be carefully scrutinized by women, who sew up any broken threads; its surface must be sheared and brushed by machinery, so as to make it perfectly even and bright, and then it is ready for the market.—Philadelphia Press.

A Dakota Doctor.

Slade used to admit that he needed experience. He didn't believe in a young doctor acting as if he couldn't learn anything. He said he wasn't proud. So he used to practice on sick horses, when the owners would allow him. He said he got some of his best points while treating horses. He was once attending a large, raw-boned bay horse which was sick at the Red Front livery barn. It was a peculiar case, and he asked the druggist what he would recommend. The druggist thought a few minutes, looked in a big, overgrown book which resembled a city directory, and said he thought that patent medicine which came at a dollar a bottle, three swallows every thirty minutes, was what the horse needed. Slade shook his head and went behind the counter and got a book entitled "Every Man His Own Family Physician and Horse and Cow Doctor," and went back to the barn. After awhile he said what the horse needed was sleep. If he could only get him to take a good nap he would come out all right. So he gave him a lot of morphine, darkened the windows, and went back to the drug store and argued for half an hour with a man about a cat-skin poultice. He told the man that it didn't stand to reason. If the poultice was made on the hair side there might be some sense in it, but on the hide side, never. Then he went back to the barn and looked cautiously in. The horse was lying perfectly still and sleeping calmly. He went up every little while all day, but still the horse slept. He said he never saw a horse sleep better. He took half the people in town around to peep through the crack to see that horse sleep. He sat up half the night admiring the calm, peaceful sleep the horse had dropped into. He said that when he woke up he'd be a new horse.

When Slade visited his patient the next morning he was somewhat alarmed to find that he was still sleeping. He concluded that he would awaken him, so he opened the door and went in. He walked up to the animal and hit him a gentle kick. Still he did not move, but continued to slumber. He took hold of his hind leg and gave a pull. It was cold and stiff. The horse was dead. The hired man said he had died the day before shortly after Slade gave him the morphine.

PARTICULAR WHERE THEY DIE.

Would-Be Self-Murderers Anxious for an Appropriate Place for the Deed.

It used to be considered a preventive of crime to give it all the publication possible. But experience would not seem to agree with that theory. The notoriety given to great criminals and the publication of all the Police Court items seem to provoke imitation, and crime gets more common and more defiant. The imitative faculty in human nature is a most curious study. According to the San Francisco Chronicle, the Park Commissioners of that city have met with it lately in a form and to an extent that worries them. Whenever one man has committed suicide in the park, it has been found that three or four try to immediately after in the same place and in the same way. Some of them don't succeed. Some of them do. A Park Commissioner was talking about it the other night, and telling some curious stories. There are certain officers out there whose main duty is to look out for people who are looking for a place to commit suicide. They don't generally go out and do it at once. One day the Commissioner was talking to an officer when a man passed them.

"Do you see that fellow?" said the officer.

"What about him?"

"Well, he's going to commit suicide."

"Now?"

"I guess not now, but he's thinking about it and making up his mind to do it."

"How do you know?"

"I know. He came to me and asked me where that fellow committed suicide the other day, and when I gave him some kind of an answer he went away. He came back and said he couldn't find the place, and was mad about it."

"Are there many like that?"

"A few. I came near giving a fellow an awful licking the other day."

"What for?"

"I knew he wanted to commit suicide the way he was behaving. He came out here every day for a long time, and he was evidently making up his mind. The last time he came out I saw he was about ready for it. I went up to him and asked him what he was doing hanging around in that way.

"He didn't give me any satisfaction, and he behaved very curiously. I said to him, 'You are going to commit suicide, I know, but I'm a —— if you do. You get out and keep out, and don't come back or I'll lick you.'"

When one of the last attempted suicides took place the man was found before he was dead. The officer came up and shocked the sympathetic bystanders by shaking the suicide very vigorously:

"'So you got the best of me, did you, —— you? I've been watching you for a week, and I knew you were going to do it, but I thought I would be sharp enough to get ahead of you. But you did get ahead of me after all," and he was seriously angry about it.

In the Bay at St. Pierre, Martinique.

We anchor in limpid blue water; the cannon shot is answered by a prolonged thunder-clapping of mountain echoes.

Then from the shore a strange flotilla bears down upon us. There is one boat, two or three canoes; but the bulk of the craft are simply white, wooded frames—flat-bottomed structures made from shipping-cases or lard-boxes, with triangular ends. In all these sit naked boys—boys between 10 and 14 years of age—averaging in color from a fine clear yellow to a deep reddish-brown or chocolate tint. They row with two little square flat pieces of wood for paddles, clutched in each hand, and these lid-shaped things are dipped into the water on either side with absolute precision, in perfect time, all the pairs of little naked arms seemingly moved by a single impulse. There is much unconscious grace in this paddling, as well as consummate skill. Then all about the ships these ridiculous little boats begin to describe circles, crossing and intercrossing so closely as almost to bring them into collision, yet never touching. The boys have simply come out to dive for coins they expect passengers to fling to them. All are chattering creole, laughing, and screaming shrilly; every eye, quick and bright as a bird's, watches the faces of the passengers on deck. "'Tention-la!" shriek a dozen sopranis: some passenger's hand has descended into a money pocket, and all are on the alert. Through the air, twirling and glittering, tumbles an English shilling, and drops into the deep water beyond the little fleet. Instantly all the lads leap, scramble, topple headforemost, out of their little tubs, and dive in pursuit. In the blue water their lithe figures look perfectly red, all but the soles of their upturned feet, which show quite white. Almost immediately they all rise again; one holds up at arm's-length above the water the recovered coin, and then puts it into his mouth for safe-keeping. Coin after coin is thrown in, and as speedily brought up; a shower of small silver follows, and not a piece is lost. These lads move through the water without apparent effort, with the suppleness of fishes. Most are decidedly fine-looking boys, with admirably rounded limbs, delicately-formed extremities. The best diver and swiftest swimmer, however, is a lemon-colored lad; his face is rather commonplace, but his slim figure has the fluent grace of an antique bronze. Lafcadio Hearn, in Harper's Magazine.

IT WON'T BAKE BREAD.—In other words, Hood's Sarsaparilla will not do impossibilities. Its proprietors tell plainly what it has done, submit proofs from sources of unquestioned reliability, and ask you frankly if you are suffering from any disease or affection caused or promoted by impure blood or low state of the system, to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. The experience of others is sufficient assurance that you will not be disappointed in the result.

TOLD FROM BEHIND THE BARS.

A Dispenser of Drinks Says He Also Is Required to Be a Doctor and a Druggist.

"Gimme about five grains of quinine in a couple of ounces of whisky."

"Have you a prescription, sir?"

"Naw."

"Then we can't sell it to you. Very sorry. Good day, sir."

"I am suffering a good deal from a complaint which I think was brought on by using bad drinking water. I want something to stop the pain, either a quarter of a grain of morphine or a dose of camphor and chloroform."

"Have you a prescription?"

"No, sir."

"Then you'll have to see a doctor. We can't dispense poisons save under medical orders."

These are samples of conversations which take place many times in a day in any large downtown drug store, says the Chicago Herald, and they indicate the closeness with which the law regarding the sale of liquors or poisons is observed. In fact, the man with a pain in his stomach, a dizziness in his head, a general feeling of "goneness," or any temporary disorder of his system which hardly justifies him in placing his case before a physician, but which demands some trifling remedy, is no longer a patron of pharmacy, because at that place he can't be accommodated. Instead he must go to a saloon.

"Yes," said a well-known dispenser of drinks, "we do a large trade of a semi-medical nature. A man who calls for whisky and quinine is entitled for his 15 cents to the usual amount of liquor and from two to eight grains of the drug, either in sulphate or pilular form. We probably use $12 worth of quinine a week, besides several bottles of quinine bitters. Then, often some one comes in all battered up by a spree. According to his choice, or our judgment, we brace him up with a laudanum cocktail, bromide of potassium, or chloral. If a fellow has the cramps here is chlorodyne ready at hand, or if he has caught cold and feels rheumatic we furnish him with a salicylic acid pill of from two to five grains with his toddy. To tell you the truth, if this business keeps on in the way it has taken of late years it won't be long before a bartender ought to be obliged to pass an examination before the State Board of Pharmacy. Talk about whisky being poison to the human system! Why, its effects aren't a marker beside those of the drugs we deal out in connection therewith. Still the demand has grown to such proportions that I might safely say one-third the profits of a prosperous saloon came from the knowledge of people that it has a semi-drug store attachment."

"How about absinthe?"

"There's not much of a call for it. Sometimes a man envelopes an absinthe frappe and thinks he's done something real desperate, but the same person may absorb three or four laudanum cocktails every day and look upon that feat simply as a matter of course."

A FRIGHTFUL SKIN DISEAS.

Messrs. STEVENS & BRUNER, Monroe, N. C.

Dear Sirs.—About two months ago, on your recommendation, I bought a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, one box of Cuticura Salve, and one cake of Cuticura Soap, for my son, aged thirteen years, who has been afflicted with eczema for a long time, and I am pleased to say that I believe the remedies have cured him. His sufferings were intense, his head being nearly raw, his ears being gone except the gristle, and his body was covered with sores. His condition was frightful to behold. The sores have now all disappeared, his skin is healthy, eyes bright, cheerful in disposition, and is working every day. My neighbors are witnesses to this remarkable cure, and the doubting ones are requested to call or write me, or any of my neighbors.

THE POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO.:

Gentlemen.—Mr. Wm. S. Stephenson, of this county brought his son to town to-day to let us see him, and to show us what Cuticura Remedies had done for him. This is the case referred to in our letter to you some time ago. To look at the boy now, one would suppose that there had never been anything the matter with him,—seems to be in perfect health. We have written and herewith inclose what his father has to say about the matter—wrote it just as he dictated.

We are selling quite a quantity of Cuticura Remedies and hear nothing but praises for them. We regard the Cuticura Remedies the best in the market, and shall do all we can to promote their sale. Yours truly,

STEVENS & BRUNER.

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvelous curative power of Sanford's Radical Cure manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

WARM WAVES

Are rolling in. You can't escape them; but you can escape the sleepless nights, loss of appetite, and languid feeling that result from draining the nervous force by muscular or mental exertion in summer's torrid days. The use of Paine's Celery Compound, that great nerve tonic, will at once strengthen the nervous system, and fortify it against the attacks of summer debility. This preparation is a medicine—not a drink. It is a scientific combination of the best tonics, giving lasting benefit to body and brain. It cures all nervous diseases, and has brought new life and health to thousands whose weakened nerves were the cause of their many ills. It is especially valuable at this season, when feeble persons are so liable to sunstroke, a disease which is nearly always fatal. Paine's Celery Compound, by restoring perfect health, almost entirely removes the liability to this dread disease. If you feel the effects of summer's heat, you can't afford to delay another day before gaining the vitality only obtained by the use of this great medicine. *Sold by Druggists. $1.00. The Columbia City Post says: "George Ewing, who played third base for the Fort Wayne Browns, is the first millionaire third baseman ever seen on the Columbia City grounds, and he did some fine playing too. Mr. Ewing loves base ball and fine dogs, and by the way, he has two ten thousand dollar law suits on his hands brought by people bitten by his savage bull dog."

The dealers in campaign goods will evidently do a flourishing business this year. The show windows of a number of the establishments in this city are already crowded with goods of this character and the sales in them have been larger than they have ever been before, at this period of the campaign. Political enthusiasm will run high and everybody almost, will have some kind of a political emblem. There is surely variety enough. Badges, watch charms, sleve buttons, neckties, handkerchiefs and a score of other things have been selected by all the parties for their followers and one will be puzzled to select from among them his insigma of political preference.

Last evening, from 5 to 8 o'clock, Miss Katie MacDougal, of West Wayne street, tendered a reception to her lady friends in honor of her aunt and guest, Mrs. Frank MacDougal, of Ottawa, Ont. It was one of the fashionable events of the season, and was socially and intellectually brilliant. Miss MacDougal's home was delightfully arranged for the entree. Signors Lapatina and Demaselli discoursed the musical program, while the richness of floral adornments, the elegance of the appointments and exceptional character of the favors, added a recherche air to the occasion, very rarely, if ever, surpassed in social annals.

E. G. SMEDLY!

A Popular and Widely Known Boot and Shoe Salesman Sends a Bullet Into His Brain at Churubusco.

"E. G. Smedly is dead."

Who was prepared for such an announcement, or dreamt of such a thing?

It is the unexpected that happens, however, for this morning, at a small hotel in Churubusco, a village in Whitley county, sixteen miles northwest of Fort Wayne, Mr. Smedly killed himself.

He went to Churubusco yesterday on a business trip for Dewey, Rogers & Co., wholesale boot and shoe merchants of Toledo. He interviewed his customers and in the evening retired to his room in the Stiles house.

No act of his elicited the slightest concern until 3 o'clock this morning, when the landlady of the house heard him move about and finally exclaim, as if in awful agony, "My God! Must I suffer this way any longer."

All was quiet then and no one heeded the man's words until the sharp report of a pistol startled the silence of the night and brought the inmates of the hotel quickly to their feet.

The dull, heavy fall of a man followed in an instant and it did not require but an other moment to surmise the trouble.

The door to the room was forced in and on the carpeted floor lay the lifeless form of Edward G. Smedley. There was a gaping wound on the right side of his skull, from which blood and brain substance slowly oozed and pillowed the dead man's head. A self-cocking revolver near by, with one chamber empty, did the work.

Messages and messengers were sent to this city and the news of the suicide spread with the wind. Mr. Smedly's wife died some ten years ago, but his son, aged 14, and his daughter aged 12 years reside with Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Woodward, on East Main street and to them the intelligence was a hard blow.

Mr. Smedly was in the city, with his children over Sunday and left home yesterday on his business tour. He was in a gloomy frame of mind, but ate breakfast and said good bye with usual favor. His troubles, however, were his own.

Some years ago Mr. Smedly left the employ of Carnahan, Hanna & Co., of this city, to travel for Dewey, Rogers & Co., a boot and shoe house at Toledo. He succeeded Mr. Tom Waters in this territory, and as he was a good salesman, he commanded a good salary. Mr. Smedly was companionable and occasionally drank with his friends. A year ago July 15, last, however, he resolved to not touch or taste liquor for a year. He kept his vow to the hour, but has been enjoying his annual vacation for two weeks past. This led to some excesses and Mr. Smedly was taken ill. Dr. Geo. L. Greenewalt was called and afforded his patient such relief as to warrant him going out on the road.

It is probable that he suffered a recurrence of the nervous trouble at Churubusco and in the consequent agony lost his reason and his life.

Mr. Smedly was a whole-souled, pleasant gentleman. He was universally liked and his fund of dry humor and quaint pleasantries made him a favorite far and wide. He was forty years of age.

His parents, now upwards of eighty years, reside at Ashfield, Mass. His brother, James Smedly, resides at New York City. He has two married sisters residing in the east. They have all been notified.

This morning Mr. M. E. Woodward left for Churubusco in Peltier's mortuary vehicle and will bring the remains to this city this evening.

HIS LIFE INSURANCE.

Mr. Smedly held three insurance policies on his life. They aggregate $15,000 and will be paid, as they are in the old line companies that do not except suicides. He held an accident policy, but it will not count. The money will go to Mr. Smedly's children.

Prof. Loisette Wins in Court.—Literary Piracy Condemned.

(From New York Sun.)

"Chief Justice Van Brunt, holding the Special term of the Supreme Court yesterday on the application of Nelson Smith and Col. Robert G. Ingersoll, made the injunction in favor of Prof. Loisette, restraining George S. Fellows from publishing his Memory System perpetual.

"Dr. William A. Hammond, Daniel Greenleaf Thompson, author of a work on psychology, and several other professors testified that Prof. Loisette's system was original, being a new departure in the education of the memory. The Court ordered Fellows to deliver up to Prof. Loisette the stereotype plates and all the books in his control. Over nine thousand copies of the pirated edition were delivered up yesterday."

We are informed that full details will be furnished in the prospectus sent post free by Prof. A. Loisette, 237 Fifth Avenue, New York.

A Mr. Coupler who boards at Ray's boarding house, on Columbia street, called at this office to-day looking for a printer whom he declares confiscated a new pair of shoes at his headquarters last evening.

Personal Points and Miscellaneous News Picked Up Around the Railroads and Manufactories.

The shops are dull.

The railroads are quiet.

Excursions are commencing again.

The Grand Rapids is having a good travel to Rome City.

The Nickel Plate will run their excursion to Niagara Falls on the 13th inst.

Engineer McCarty, of the Nickel Plate, is out of the city on his vacation.

Mr. F. H. Barnard, the agent of the Nickel Plate, has gone to Duluth on business.

There were eighty persons on the excursion of the Grand Army posts to Warsaw this morning.

Two new floors of men, eight in all, have been put to work in the car wheel department of the Bass foundry and machine works.

The railroads were very dull and devoid of news this morning and nothing of interest could be gathered at the manufactories.

John Knapp, son of J. W. Knapp, a former engineer of the Wabash pumping house, is now a telegraph operator at St. Louis, Mo.

There were two excursion to-day. One was over the Nickel Plate to Lake Maxinkuckee and the other over the Pittsburg to Warsaw.

Messrs. J. H. Hobrock, sr., and J. K. Bradley, of the Pittsburg shops, went to Chicago yesterday to do some work for the company at that point.

Henry Horman, an employe of the Bass works, dislocated his shoulder yesterday while working at that establishment. He will be kept from duty for a few days.

Company "Q" held an interesting meeting at the Pittsburg freight house last evening and received a number of new members. They purpose giving an excursion to Warsaw in the near future.

The Central Traffic association roads have agreed to sell excursion tickets at one highest limited fare for the round trip to the annual conclave of Knights Templar at Cleveland, Ohio, this month.

Frank Bissel returned home Tuesday afternoon from Indianapolis, after riding a distance of 110 miles on his bicycle. He was accompanied on the trip by Carl Peter Swain, who is at Rushville. Mr. Swain will return home Sunday.

The objecting Wabash bondholders are to be allowed to intervene in the foreclosure suit brought by the purchasing committee, and as the latter are not inclined to buy off the opposition, it seems that further delay and litigation are inevitable.

Freight men seem very sanguine that the business of the month which begins to-day show a handsome improvement over July just passed, and will exceed that of August, 1887. They base this belief on the large amounts of freight in sight, and which will naturally drift on to the market in the next thirty days.

It is stated officially that the associations which insure railroad men against accident have, within the last sixty days, been called upon more frequently to pay benefits than at any time in their history. June and early July were very prolific in railroad accidents, and nearly every railroad man now carries a policy in some one of the accident insurance associations.

A DRAWN BATTLE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The international fight between Frank Murphy, of England, and Jack Havlin, of Boston, for $1,000 a side, came off this morning at at Verplanck's Point, on the Hudson river, and ended in a draw.

The men fought forty-nine rounds, taking three hours and fifteen minutes. There were about fifty spectators.

From the first the men fought hard. Havlin got in the first blow on Murphy's chest and before it was returned landed another on his cheek and a third blow on Murphy's neck as time was called. In the third round the first blood was claimed and allowed for Murphy.

The fight went on with the advantages gained by either alienating in almost every round and neither obtaining any advantage sufficient to change the betting, which continued even throughout.

The forty seventh round was the severest in the battle, considering the condition the men were then in. Havlin was staggering around the ring and Murphy was too weak to take advantage of his condition.

At the end of the forty-ninth round it was plain that neither had sufficient strength to continue the fight and the referee decided the fight a draw. His decision was considered by all to be the only one possible.

It was difficult to say which of the men was the most badly used up.

IN DEEP DOUBT.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 2.—Yesterday the republicans seemed to be taking a rest and the Shelbyville conventions served for a time to distract their attention from the consideration of the gubernatorial question. Around headquarters an air of quiet prevailed. This was not wholly indicative of quiescence on the part of the managers, for they were very busy, but in negotiations, behind the door way. All sorts of schemes were being hatched up.

Rhody Shiel was still howling vociferously for Porter and so were a good many others, but it was noticable that they were mostly friends of Harrison rather than of Porter. This fact caused a great deal of comment. It is considered remarkable that a presidential candidate should be relying upon the strength of the local ticket to carry his own state for him. Heretofore, when Hendricks was on the national ticket, for instance, the party has counted upon the national ticket to help the state ticket, and the desperation with which republicans are insisting on Porter's nomination is generally regarded as a confession of Harrison's weakness. Porter still gives no evidence of yielding to the pressure being brought to bear upon him.

Among the other candidates it seems generally conceded that Col. Robertson will come into the convention with more positive strength than any other candidate, but it is not believed that he will have enough to nominate. It is also predicted that the Porter element will fight Robertson bitterly and secure his defeat. By Robertson's friends this is regarded as rank ingratitude for the colonel was about the only Harrison man in Allen county. Now that Porter is out of the way Robertson is gaining strength rapidly, and it is said large delegations will be here by Sunday in his behalf.

Congressman Steele is still regarded as the coming man. John C. New's declaration that Howey will win, is regarded as a good joke, for New is well known to be for Steele and his crowd which has never taken kindly to Porter is working tooth and nail for Steele. Cumback still talks Porter, and says he wouldn't take the nomination. Chase and the other small fry are only incidentally mentioned.

BARTLEY CAMPBELL.

The Distinguished Play-wright Buried at Pittsburg To-day.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 2.—The remains of Bartley Campbell arrived at 1 o'clock this morning and were interred in the St. Mary's cemetery a few hours later. The body was first taken to St. Paul's cathedral, where the casket was opened and thousands of friends paid tribute.

The pall-bearers were, Wm. Ramsey, of the Globe; John A. Hazlett and W. N. Fullwood, of the Leader; C. E. Locke, of the Press and F. P. Cass, formerly of the Cincinnati Gazette. They were all old newspaper men, long and intimately acquainted with the dead dramatist.

Fires.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Aug. 2.—The Little, Gratt & Co.'s mills were destroyed by fire last night. Loss, $100,000; insurance, $60,000.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 2.—The state insurance has shut up the NEW YORK Safety Reserve Fund association. Liabilities, $43,161.27 and total assets $12.33.

ASIATIC CHOLERA.

Three Thousand Deaths From it in Foreign Lands—The Deadly Work of a Volcano.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—The steamship Arabia, arrived here last night from Hong Kong and Japan. The cholera in Amoy seems for the time to be held in check, but at Obang Chun it is reported that 3,000 deaths have occurred in the past sixty days.

The volcano of Mount Iwahassis suddenly burst into activity and in a short time fifty-six houses in Iwasenura were destroyed. On July 16 the eruption was still continued with great destruction and loss of life. About 400 persons and thirty horses in a village called Bira, were buried under the sand and the ashes thrown out by the volcano. Among those buried were some fifteen visitors at the hot springs in the neighborhood.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The Turkish government has sent a protest to the powers against the occupation of Massowah by Italy.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—President and Mme. Carnot met with an ovation, yesterday, on arriving at Fontainbleau, where they will spend the summer.

MADRID, Aug. 2.—A pillar of the Cathedral at Seville fell, causing a portion of the roof of the nave to collapse. The falling debris destroyed the organ and did other damage to the Cathedral.

VIENNA, Aug. 2.—The jury trials in the cases of the anarchists in Austria and Hungary have been suspended one year.

AN ITALIAN OUTBREAK.

They Strike for Higher Pay and Threaten to Hang the Paymaster.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 2.—Two hundred Italian laborers on the Mahoning railroad, near Findlay, struck for higher wages and were discharged. They demanded their pay. They were so boisterous that Hyjenzo, the paymaster, hesitated about producing the money. The strikers procured a rope and were about to hang him when the sheriff appeared with a posse and rescued him. There is great excitement and fears of another outbreak.

OUR BANNER.

The National Democratic Committee Adopt the "Flag Bandana" as a Campaign Banner.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The national democratic committee has adopted as a campaign banner and badge the "flag bandana," designed and patented by Jos. M. Jones, Paris. It is a typical bandana and has stars and stripes stamped in its center and corner. This announcement was made yesterday by Chairman Wm. H. Barnum.

IT'S A SUCCESS.

The Third Well at the Water Works Made a Gusher.

The third supply well at the water works basin was tested this morning and is a success. It will flow 250,000 gallons in twenty-four hours. The well will be officially inspected this week and the work of sinking others will go on.

State Chess Tournament

GREENCASTLE, Aug. 2.—Notwithstanding the intense heat, the interest in the chess tournament does not abate. Several prominent players arrived last night and the hall is filled with visitors. The games so far played have been won in the major class, as follows: Brown, five; Louis, two; Prof. E. Marquis, five; Maj. Mulkey, two; Ripley, two; and Tomlinson, six. In the minor class Tague has won ten, Marquis, jr., three; Telster four; Johnson, ten; Gordon, three; Blake, six; and Bachelder, three.

Broke the Record.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—The steamship Owego accomplished the great feat of breaking the record on her last trip coming up in sixty-three hours and fifteen minutes. The best previous time was sixty-three hours and fifty minutes, made by the steamship Tioga at the opening of the season.

The Centennial Exhibition.

MELBOURNE, Aug. 2.—In his speech at the opening of the centennial exhibition yesterday, Governor Loch concluded by quoting the words of the address delivered at the opening of the Philadelphia exhibition in 1876.

A LOVE TRAGEDY.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 2.—Shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, May Patton, of Johnstown, Pa., shot and killed Charles DeKnight, a well known young man of Lawrenceville, and then blew her own brains out. The tragedy took place in the Metropolitan hotel. The cause will probably never be known.

The couple called at the hotel this morning and DeKnight registered as C. Lewis and wife, of Johnstown, Pa. They were given a room and nothing more heard from them until 9 o'clock, when the guests were startled by a report of two pistol shots in quick succession.

It is supposed they quarreled and DeKnight was about to leave the room when he was shot. The door was locked. Both have moved in good society. The girl has always borne a good reputation, was handsome and about twenty years of age.

DeKnight was a Pullman car conductor and lived with his parents in Lawrenceville. He was about twenty four years old. A letter was found from the girl addressed, Jessie Thurlow, Huntingdon, Pa. It stated she was going to commit suicide.

HAD THE GLANDERS.

A Dangerous and Fatal Horse Disease Prevalent.

Yesterday two well developed cases of glanders were discovered in this city. One of the horses, "Jim Smith," was owned by Willis Pearse, the other was Frank Gruber's bay horse.

Some time ago the horses suffered from from swollen feet and ulcers, a disease prevailed generally then. This seems to have developed into glanders in the cases named. The disease was diagnosed by Dr. A. J. Reed and Supt. McNutt, of the street car service.

The horses were then promptly shot. Mr. Pearse had his horse cut in pasture, while Gruber had his at his home.

The state law imposes a fine of $500 for maintaining or transferring from one place to another a horse afflicted with glanders, which is characterized by veterinary surgeons as a contagious and very destructive disease of the mucous membrane in horses, characterized by a constant discharge of sticky matter from the nose and an enlargement and inflamation of the glands beneath and within the lower jaw. It is sometimes communicated to man by contact with glandered animals and is always fatal. There are no other afflicted horses in the city so far as known.

WE CAN HAVE IT.

The Postal Telegraph Line is a Pretty Sure Thing.

Mayor Muhler and Mr. J. Pottlitzer, who went to Chicago to interview the officers of the Postal Telegraph company relative to extending their line to Fort Wayne, are at home.

Mr. Muhler says they were nicely received by Supt. Parker, who assured them that he would send his representatives here to look over the field.

"If they can get into the city and obtain a right-of-way from Auburn, they will send their line here certain," said the mayor.

UP AGAIN.

Dr. J. M. Dinnen Exempt from Water Taxes.

This morning Dr. J. M. Dinnen protested against the further collection of water works rentals from him this year, as the trustees have sufficient funds to operate the works. Dr. Dinnen will therefore come under the pale of the recent injunction issued by Judge O'Bonzke.

It is said that other water takers will do likewise and save a half years rent.

COMING THICK.

Another Suit for $10,000 Against the Pennsylvania Company.

This afternoon Rosie Bauch, through her attorney, Judge L. M. Ninde, sued the Pennsylvania Railroad company for $10,000 for causing the death of Edward Bauch. Mr. Bauch is administrator of his estate.

THE ROSS BICYCLIST.

He Travels From Abeline, Kansas, to Boston on His Machine.

A Patent Leather Trust.

NEWARK, O., Aug. 2.—The Patent Leather Manufacturers' association of the United States yesterday resolved to advance the price of goods from ten to fifteen per cent. All contracts at old rates must expire by the 31st of December. All but four of the leather firms in the country are in the combination.

THUNDER STORMS.

Many Houses Struck by Lightning—Fields of Wheat Under Water and Much Damage Done.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., Aug. 2.—During the thunder storm, last evening, Julia Whalen, aged fifteen years, was killed, and Alice Fleming, aged ten years, badly shocked, while running for shelter. Curiously enough both were wounded in the throat as if cut with a dull knife.

Aaron Applegate and S. W. Cox, guards at the prison south, were knocked off the walls, and the roof of prison foundry torn off.

Mrs. Ed Cummins and George Aldridge were struck and rendered unconscious.

A number of houses were more or less damaged.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 2.—Specials from St. Cloud and Sauk Rapids, Minn., state that the most terrific thunder storm occurred last night and that torrents of rain fell from 10 p. m. until 4 o'clock this morning.

The Mississippi rose a foot and at the dam eight feet. Many houses were struck by lightning. Whole fields of wheat are under water and washed out. Many houses are flooded and can only be reached by boats. The damage will be many thousand dollars.

QUITE AN HONOR.

Hon. William Fleming to Have Charge of the Financial Management of the Indiana Campaign.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Ex-State Treasurer Fleming, of Indiana, by special invitation of the president, arrived yesterday morning and spent the afternoon at the white house. It is stated by Indiana democrats that the president has asked Mr. Fleming to take charge of the financial branch of the campaign in the Hoosier state, and that he is to receive special instructions from Senator Gorman, who will also be located at Indianapolis for some time during the campaign.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

Rev. Schoenfarber returned home this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Christ Boecker arrived home to day after a pleasant lake tour.

Col. R. S. Robertson has engaged parlor No. 12, at the Denison hotel, to receive his friends at the state convention.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The presiding officer announced the appointment of a select committee under the resolution in relation of the commerce and business between the United States and Canada as follows: Senators Hoar, Allison, Hale, Dolph, Pugh, Eustis and Blodgett, a conference committee ordered on the naval appropriation bill, and Senators Hale, Tarwell and Beck were appointed conferees.

Surgeon General Hampton, this morning, received a telegram from Surgeon Murry, of Tampa, Fla., that the first two suspicious cases of yellow fever occurred last evening and two others this morning. Manitee village is guarded by twenty-five men. Suspicious houses have been disinfected. Probably 100 persons are liable to take the fever. There is no panic among the people.

The fisheries treaty was taken up, the question being on Mr. Morgan's motion to postpone its further consideration till December next.

THE READY REVOLVER.

One Boy Kills Another at Lafayette With But Little Provocation.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Aug. 2.—What looks like a murder was committed here about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, Wm. Ellsworth, aged nineteen, being the victim. Ellsworth was fishing beneath the White river bridge. A number of half-grown boys, known as the "Dirty Dozen," sat on the bridge and threw pebbles in the water. Ellsworth remonstrated and threatened to thump them. He finally came up, and Oliver White, about his own age, drew a revolver and ordered him to stand off. Ellsworth laughed, and presently armed himself with a brick, when White again flourished his weapon and warned him to stand off. As Ellsworth raised his arm as if to throw, White fired, the ball striking Ellsworth about an inch above the navel. He fell and the thoroughly frightened boys ran for home. White, he did the shooting, cut across the bridge and started north along the river. Officers were in pursuit. Ellsworth lived but a few moments. He was a son of Dr. J. T. Ellsworth, a former physician here, now a resident of Independence. The boy was pretty wild.

Why You Feel

So weak and exhausted is because your blood is impure. As well expect the sanitary condition of a city to be perfect with defiled water and defective sewerage, as to expect such a complicated piece of mechanism as the human frame to be in good order with impure blood circulating over to its minutest veins. Do you know that every drop of your two or three gallons of blood passes through the heart and lungs in about two and a half minutes, and that, on its way, it makes bone and muscle, brain and nerve, and all other solids and fluids of the body? The blood is the great nourisher, or, as the Bible terms it,

"The Life of the Body."

Is it any wonder, then, that if the blood be not pure and perfect in its constituents, you suffer so many indescribable symptoms?

Ayer's Sarsaparilla stands "head and shoulders" above every other Alterative and Blood Medicine. As proof, read these reliable testimonies:

G. C. Brack, of Lowell, Mass., says: "For the past 25 years I have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla. In my opinion, the best remedial agencies for the cure of all the diseases arising from impurities of the blood are contained in this medicine."

Eugene I. Hill, M. D., 331 Sixth Ave., New York, says: "As a blood-purifier and general builder-up of the system, I have never found anything to equal Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It gives perfect satisfaction."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla proves equally efficacious in all forms of Scrofula, Boils, Carbuncles, Eczema, Humors, Lumbago, Catarrh, &c.; and is, therefore, the very best

GEN. LEW. WALLACE positively declines to be a republican candidate for governor. When the strongest man in the republican party declines the proffered honor, there is something radically wrong.

THAT high protective taxes make the monopolist manufacturers richer, heartless and greedy every laboring man knows. Do the high taxes make the working people correspondingly rich? Every intelligent toiler will answer no.

HIGH tax laws that prohibit fair competition in the markets of the nation empower the monopolists of the country to place extortionate prices on the goods they sell to the people. Witness the trusts and combinations at work.

IN detailing the recent nomination of Hon. Fred. J. Hayden for joint senator, the Columbia City Post says editorially: "Mr. Hayden served Allen county in the lower branch of the legislature several years ago and is a man of ability. He will receive the united support of the democracy of Whitley county."

GENERAL HARRISON said in one of his talks the other day: "The tariff should be revised not by its enemies but by its friends." This expression seems to have thrown the republican press into a pleasant mood. But the remark was used in Henry Clay's time and was old then, so that it only illustrates the general's memory.

The Chicago Times is exposing the indignities inflicted upon the poor shop girls of Chicago who are compelled to bear insults and injury from cruel overseers and bosses for from seventeen to twenty three and one-half cents a day. Ask these poor creatures if a high protective tariff makes high wages and a pale face, pinched with hunger, will tell you "No." There are cases just like these in Fort Wayne.

THE Indianapolis News assures an expectant populace that General Harrison has not yet begun writing his letter of acceptance, and nothing can be learned as to when it will be given to the public. It concludes that there is no occasion for haste, and if it is not written for several weeks it will be no later than such documents usually are. The general might postpone it until December and publish it as a Christmas serial entitled "When I was a mid-summer idol."

Greater benefits may be derived from the vacation season if, at the same time, the blood is being cleansed and vitalized by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. An increase of appetite, vigor, and buoyancy of spirits attend the use of this medicine.

For Sale.

The Gazette's "Constant Reader" Enlightened.

To the Editor of The Sentinel.

Is it true that the cost of living is now greater than before the adoption of the protective tariff? To this question, asked by a constant reader, the Gazette economist in the issue of his "organ" for July 29th pretends to give an answer.

The pretended answer consists of four statements:

First—All manufactured goods are from 30 to 40 per cent. cheaper now than before 1860.

Second—That home manufactures are not more costly here than similar goods in free trade England.

Third—That the "statistics of wages and average prices of necessaries of life" in the census of 1888 lead to a negative answer to the question.

Fourth—That if the day's work be taken as the real purchasing factor, one day's work will purchase much more now than formerly.

As to the first statement the Gazette economist admits that the only proper question is, would manufactured goods be cheaper than they are here and now, if we had not so high a tariff? The proper test of this question, he says, is to compare prices here with the prices of goods of the same quality in free trade England. If the effect of our tariff is to enhance the cost of goods, then prices ought to be higher here than for similar articles there. Let us see, says our economist, what Mr. Schoenhof, himself a free trader and United States consul at Tunstall, England, has to say upon the point. This has the appearance of great candor. Out of the mouth of a free trader he is going to get the evidence to convict the revenue reformers of lying. Well, what does Mr. Schoenhof, himself a free trader, say? As far as appears from the Gazette economist's quotation, he says just this: Cotton goods, as shirtings, sheetings, muslin underwear for women, and factory made shoes and boots are fully as cheap in the United States as in England. He says that articles made to order are lower in England than here, as are also ready made articles, but that in these latter the difference is not so marked. And this is all, as far as appears from the Gazette economist's quotation, that Mr. Schoenhof, himself a free trader, says. Shirts, sheets and shoes are as cheap in the United States as in England. Truly this is a profound investigation of the question as to whether manufactured goods are cheaper here than in free trade England. The Gazette economist, like the artful dodger that he is, wanted to shirk an answer by suggesting that even free traders are obliged to concede the point at issue, although he perfectly well knew that Mr. Schoenhof is of an entirely different opinion.

Mr. Lathrop, republican consul of the United States, at Bristol, in 1884, says, (consul reports, 1884, vol. 1, p. 645) cheaper dress goods cost here about one-half as much as in the United States, and better dress goods about one third less than there. Consul Packard (p. 691) says that Sunday suits cost from $4.86 to $7.29.

Consul Grinnell, at Bradford, says that overcoats cost $7.29 and tweed suits, $7.29.

When the Gazette economist was pointing out how much manufactures had been cheapened since 1860, he was exuberant in his list. Crockery-ware, woolen goods, including dress goods and carpets, silk goods, iron and steel commodities, edge tools, iron-ware, farming implements, furniture, all, he exclaims, are cheaper than in 1860. If our tariff enhances the cost of goods, all these things ought, he says, to be cheaper in free trade England than here. But now, let us see, he says with argumental mien, what Consul Schoenhof, himself a free trader, says upon this point. Why, he says, shirts, sheets and shoes are as cheap in the United States as in England. Does it not follow then that crockery-ware and steel rails, dress goods and plows, carpets and edge tools are as cheap here as in England? And with such an answer he seems to think "constant reader" will be abundantly satisfied. But he may not be satisfied. He may ask how is it that in the year ending June, 1887, there were imported into this country 77,000 tons of steel rails which after paying $17 per ton duty were actually sold in competition with American rails? Were these rails bought by the foolish rich who would have them merely because they were foreign? or were they bought by shrewd business men who make every dollar count? Could they have been sold unless the price of American rails had been nearly $17 higher than the price of the foreign rails? Must it not follow that the 1,579,000 tons of American rails, made and sold during that same year, cost in tribute to their monopolist makers about $26,000,000? and must it not be true that on this $26,000,000 and on all the other millions that have in the past twenty years been paid in like tribute, the American people must continue to pay, in the way of higher freight, both interest and profits.

If the Gazette's "Constant Reader," or any one else wishes really to know whether American made goods are enhanced in cost by the duty, let him ask any merchant tailor what first-class English worsteds cost. He will find that he can not buy the latter for one cent less than the former cost, duty and all, Captain White and the Gazette economist to the contrary notwithstanding.

And now as to the Gazette economists third statement, that the census report of 1880 leads to a negative answer to our question. The statement simply is not true. Neither in the census of 1880 nor anywhere else under heaven or among men can he find any official statistics that show or tend to show that the cost of living is less in these United States then it was in 1860.

The tables of the census showing the average price of the necessaries of life are compiled from reports furnished by business men in all parts of the country. These reports give prices for each year from 1851, in many cases, down to and including 1880. The prices cover seven articles under the head of dry goods, all common meats and groceries, and also rent, board, wood, coal and man's heavy boots. I have made a careful examination of these tables, with the following results:

House rent, board, wood, coal, and boots are shown by these reports to have advanced since 1860 from 15 to 40 per cent. Flour, codfish, coffee, tea, sugar, beef, beans, mutton and potatoes are shown to have advanced 25 per cent. There is a very small fraction of decrease in the cost of cotton articles mentioned under the head of dry goods.

In the statistics of wages in the woolen industry there are given tables, made by the manufacturers themselves, showing the selling price of their products in various years. In every instance where prices are given for 1880 and 1888, the price is the same as in 1860, or higher, except that in one instance, jeans which sold for 55 cents in 1860 sold for 40 cents in 1886. In two instances, even the war prices of 1865 and 1866 had not been lowered in 1880. They had the war tax and were selling at war prices. These are the exact facts about the "mass of statistics" that the Gazette economist says tend to show a lower cost of living in 1880 than in 1860.

Nor is this all. Mr. C. D. Wright, secretary of the Massachusetts bureau of labor and statistics, has officially shown that the cost of the necessaries of life rose in Massachusetts 41.5 per cent. between 1860 and 1880. He has also shown that in 1888 clothing averaged 45 per cent. higher in Massachusetts than in England, dry goods 13 per cent. higher, fuel 60, and groceries 28. Mr. Wright was not hired by the Cobden club to compile these figures in the interests of the wily free trader. He was simply an intelligent and skilled servant of the state of Massachusetts.

And now as to the increasing purchasing power of a day's work. Wages were, according to the census reports of 1860 and 1880, as follows in the industries named:

	1860	1880
Woolen goods	$284	$300
Glass	330	380
Iron and steel	355	390
Cotton	200	246

These are among the most heavily protected industries and they show an advance in wages from 1860 to 1880 of 28, 16, 10 and 23 per cent respectively. This advance was all secured in time of war when labor was scarce and competition limited, and even if that advance had been maintained it has been outstripped by the advance in the cost of necessaries of life. But it has not been maintained. Since 1870, down even to the present hour there has been a continual falling off in wages in the great protected industries, as the following figures show:

	1870	1880
Glass	$429	$380
Lumber	245	215
Cotton	313	246
Iron and steel	463	390

Wages for 1870 are reduced to a gold basis. According to Mr. Wright, wages fell off 5.4 per cent. from 1872 to 1880, while in free trade Great Britain, they increased 9.7 per cent.

The last annual report of the bureau of statistics for the state of Illinois shows that in twelve protected industries of that state the average decrease in wages from 1860 to 1886 was 18 per cent.

In the face of facts and figures like these the Gazette economist impudently declares that only the mendacious or the ignorant assert that the cost of living is made greater by our doomed war tariff. Evan handed pastics commends the ingredients of the poisoned chalice to his own lips.

Yours respectfully,
LOW TARIFF.

will please the most fastidious, and we offer them to those who have not tried them, in the belief that the more general intelligence a man has the more he'll earn. The workingman can well afford his daily paper at "one cent a day."

"Nearly Everybody Reads It."

The Merchant reads the Chicago Daily News because he must know what's going on in the great business centres of the world, and he can't waste time hunting for it in a "blanket sheet."

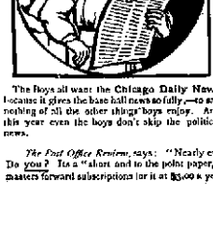
The Farmer reads the Chicago Daily News because he makes more than $500 a year—one cent a day—by keeping promptly posted on the variations of the market,—he doesn't wait for the slow weeklies any more.

The Mechanic reads the Chicago Daily News because he knows that even in matters of handicraft the more general intelligence a man has the more he'll earn. The workingman can well afford his daily paper at "one cent a day."

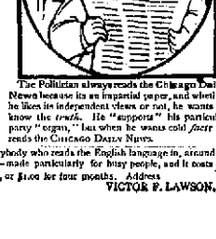
Grandfather reads the Chicago Daily News because it gives all the news, and yet so condensed that it doesn't tire him out to read it. And then, the print is so clear.

Mother reads the Chicago Daily News because she wants to keep up with her husband in general information, and then she particularly enjoys the household hints and things of special interest to women which are in it every day.

Grandmother reads the Chicago Daily News because she still wants to know what's going on. And it's a comfort to see a daily paper in the family that's clean and pure,—one she's not afraid to have "the children see."



The Boys all want the Chicago Daily News because it gives the base ball news so fully,—to say nothing of all the other things boys enjoy. And this year even the boys don't skip the political news.



The Politician always reads the Chicago Daily News because its an impartial paper, and whether he likes its independent views or not, he wants to know the truth. Its "suppose" his particular pony "regrets," but when he wants cold facts he reads the Chicago Daily News.

The Girls all read the Chicago Daily News because they're specially interested in its chatty gossips about fashions and home matters, to say nothing about the excellent serial story always running.

MAGNOLIA

BALM, Soothes Redness, Roughness Pimples and gives delicate Face, Neck Arms & Hands

In the Carpet Mill.

If brussels carpet is to be made the yarn goes to the dyeroom; but if it is to be made into tapestry, then it goes to the printer. When dyed, of course, each yarn is of one color throughout. When printed every yarn is of one color for a certain length, perhaps half an inch, then another for perhaps a quarter of an inch, and so on. The dyehouse is a picturesque place. It is filled with clouds of steam that roll from the caldrons, over which half-naked men are stooping, lifting stout rods covered with hanks of yarn in and out of the boiling dye. When the workman thinks the yarn has acquired the right color he submits a skein of it to the chief dyer. If he passes it the batch of yarn is steamed in order to "set" the dye, and is then washed and dried in another hot room, and then the yarn is at last ready for the loom.

A Brussels carpet usually contains five colors. This is accomplished by filling five "frames" with spools of yarn, each frame being filled with yarn of one color. The threads are carried from each spool through the "heddle" to the loom. Above, the "jacquard," a part of the machine of intricate construction, determines just which threads are raised at a particular moment so as to appear in the pattern. Thus Brussels is woven, the pattern growing like magic as the shuttle flies back and forth, every part of the complicated machinery of the loom moving at its appointed time and place as if inspired with intelligence.

The printing process is even more wonderful. Imagine a huge drum on which the yarn is wound. Beneath it runs a carriage carrying a kind of brush loaded with color. The color is changed as required by a boy. The operator turns the drum to a certain point, and at a signal the carriage rolls across under the drum, painting a narrow strip of color. The drum moves a notch and the color brush flies back again, doubling the width of the strip. The operator follows the pattern before him, and he must follow it neatly. If he makes the strip of color too wide, and if the color be dark, so that another cannot be printed over it, the whole drum of yarn is spoiled and the blunderer is fined $1.

When the yarn has all been printed it is steamed, washed, and dried, and then reeled. Now, it must be "set" according to the pattern. This is a process requiring much patience and neatness, and the nimble fingers of girls are employed to do it. When a pattern is "set," it is rolled on a cylinder and then each thread must be fixed into its proper place in the loom. Then the weaving begins and the carpet commences to grow, every dot of color coming exactly where it should to bring out the pattern clearly and distinctly. The most wonderful thing about the loom is the "wire" movement. The machinery pulls out from a woven carpet a wire, armed with a blade at its end. This blade cuts the wool, and thus makes the "pile." Then the wire is pushed back and again thrust into the warp, the whole movement being accomplished with lightning-like rapidity.

The carpet must then be carefully scrutinized by women, who sew up any broken threads; its surface must be sheared and brushed by machinery, so as to make it perfectly even and bright, and then it is ready for the market.—Philadelphia Press.

A Dakota Doctor.

Slade used to admit that he needed experience. He didn't believe in a young doctor acting as if he couldn't learn anything. He said he wasn't proud. So he used to practice on sick horses, when the owners would allow him. He said he got some of his best points while treating horses. He was once attending a large, raw-boned bay horse which was sick at the Red Front livery barn. It was a peculiar case, and he asked the druggist what he would recommend. The druggist thought a few minutes, locked in a big overgrown book which resembled a city directory, and said he thought that patent medicine which came at a dollar a bottle, three swallows every thirty minutes, was what the horse needed. Slade shook his head and went behind the counter and got a book entitled "Every Man His Own Family Physician and Horse and Cow Doctor," and went back to the barn. After awhile he said what the horse needed was sleep. If he could only get him to take a good nap he would come out all right. So he gave him a lot of morphine, darkened the windows, and went back to the drug store and argued for half an hour with a man about a catskin poultice. He told the man that it didn't stand to reason. If the poultice was made on the hair side there might be some sense in it, but on the hide side, never. Then he went back to the barn and looked cautiously in. The horse was lying perfectly still and sleeping calmly. He went up every little while all day, but still the horse slept. He said he never saw a horse sleep better. He took half the people in town around to peep through the crack to see that horse sleep. He sat up half the night admiring the calm, peaceful sleep the horse had dropped into. He said that when he woke up he'd be a new horse.

When Slade visited his patient the next morning he was somewhat alarmed to find that he was still sleeping. He concluded that he would awaken him, so he opened the door and went in. He walked up to the animal and hit him a gentle kick. Still he did not move, but continued to slumber. He took hold of his hind leg and gave a pull. It was cold and stiff. The horse was dead. The hired man said he had died the day before shortly after Slade gave him the morphine.

"Facts are stubborn things," and sufferers from Chills and Fever find this complaint a very stubborn fact until they commence the use of Ayer's Ague Cure. This medicine never fails to cure even the worst cases.

PARTICULAR WHERE THEY DIE.

Would-Be Self-Murderers Anxious for an Appropriate Place for the Deed.

It used to be considered a preventive of crime to give it all the publication possible. But experience would not seem to agree with that theory. The notoriety given to great criminals and the publication of all the Police Court items seem to provoke imitation, and crime gets more common and more defiant. The imitative faculty in human nature is a most curious study. According to the San Francisco Chronicle, the Park Commissioners of that city have met with it lately in a form and to an extent that worries them. Whenever one man has committed suicide in the park, it has been found that three or four try to immediately after in the same place and in the same way. Some of them don't succeed. Some of them do. A Park Commissioner was talking about it the other night, and telling some curious stories. There are certain officers out there whose main duty is to look out for people who are looking for a place to commit suicide. They don't generally go out and do it at once. One day the Commissioner was talking to an officer when a man passed them.

"Do you see that fellow?" said the officer.

"What about him?"

"Well, he's going to commit suicide."

"Now?"

"I guess not now, but he's thinking about it and making up his mind to do it."

"How do you know?"

"I know. He came to me and asked me where that fellow committed suicide the other day, and when I gave him some kind of an answer he went away. He came back and said he couldn't find the place, and was mad about it."

"Are there many like that?"

"A few. I come near giving a fellow an awful licking the other day."

"What for?"

"I knew he wanted to commit suicide the way he was behaving. He came out here every day for a long time, and he was evidently making up his mind. The last time he came out I saw he was about ready for it. I went up to him and asked him what he was doing hanging around in that way.

"He didn't give me any satisfaction, and he behaved very curiously. I said to him, 'You are going to commit suicide, I know, but I'm d—— if you do. You get out and keep out, and don't come back or I'll lick you.'"

When one of the last attempted suicides took place the man was found before he was dead. The officer came up and shocked the sympathetic bystanders by shaking the suicide very vigorously:

"So you got the best of me, did you, —— you? I've been watching you for a week, and I knew you were going to do it, but I thought I would be sharp enough to get ahead of you. But you did get ahead of me after all," and he was seriously angry about it.

In the Bay at St. Pierre, Martinique.

We anchor in limpid blue water; the gunnon shot is answered by a prolonged thunder-clapping of mountain echoes.

Then from the shore a strange flotilla bears down upon us. There is one boat, two or three canoes; but the bulk of the craft are simply white, wooded frames—flat-bottomed structures made from shipping-cases or lard-boxes, with triangular ends. In all these sit naked boys—boys between 10 and 14 years of age—averaging in color from a fine clear yellow to a deep reddish-brown or chocolate tint. They row with two little, square flat pieces of wood for paddles, clutched in each hand, and these lily-shaped things are dipped into the water on either side with absolute precision in perfect time. The pairs of little naked arms seemingly moved by a single impulse. There is much unconscious grace in this paddling, as well as consummate skill. Then all about the ships these ridiculous little boats begin to describe circles, crossing and intercrossing so closely as almost to bring them into collision, yet never touching. The boys have simply come out to dive for coins they expect passengers to fling to them. All are chattering creole, laughing, and screaming shrilly; every eye, quick and bright as a bird's, watches the faces of the passengers on deck. "Tention-la!" shriek a dozen sopranı: some passenger's hand has descended into a money pocket, and all are on the alert. Through the air, twirling and glittering, tumbles an English shilling, and drops into the deep water beyond the little fleet. Instantly all the lads leap, scramble, topple head foremost, plop—of their little fishe, and dive in pursuit. In the blue water their lithe figures look perfectly red, all but the soles of their upturned feet, which show quite white. Almost immediately they all rise again; one holds up at arm's-length above the water the recovered coin, and then puts it into his mouth for safe-keeping. Coin after coin is thrown in, and as speedily brought up; a shower of small silver follows, and not a piece is lost. Those lads move through the water without apparent effort, with the suppleness of fishes. Most are decidedly fine-looking boys, with admirably rounded limbs, delicately-formed extremities. The best diver and swiftest swimmer, however, is a lemon-colored lad; his face is rather commonplace, but his slim figure has the finest grace of an antique bronze. Lafcadio Hearn, in Harper's Magazine.

TOLD FROM BEHIND THE BARS.

A Dispenser of Drinks Says He Also Is Required to Be a Doctor and a Druggist.

"Gimme about five grains of quinine in a couple of ounces of whisky."

"Have you a prescription, sir?"

"Now,"

"Then we can't sell it to you. Very sorry. Good day, sir."

"I am suffering a good deal from a dumpish which I think was brought on by using bad drinking water. I want something to stop the pain, either a quarter of a grain of morphine or a dose of camphor and chloroform."

"Have you a prescription?"

"No, sir."

"Then you'll have to see a doctor. We can't dispense poisons save under medical orders."

These are samples of conversations which take place many times in a day in any large downtown drug store, says the Chicago Herald, and they indicate the closeness with which the law regarding the sale of liquors or poisons is observed. In fact, the man with a pain in his stomach, a dizziness in his head, a general feeling of "goneness," or any temporary disorder of his system which hardly justifies him in placing his case before a physician, but which demands some trifling remedy, is no longer a patron of pharmacy, because at that place he can't be accommodated. Instead he must go to a saloon.

"Yes," said a well-known dispenser of drinks, "we do a large trade of the semi-medical nature. A man who calls for whisky and quinine is entitled to 3 his 15 cents to the usual amount of liquor and from two to eight grains of the drug, either in sulphate or pilular form. We probably use $12 worth of quinine a week, besides several bottles of quinine bitters. Then, often some one comes in all battered up by a spree. According to his choice, or our judgment, we brace him up with a laudanum cocktail, bromide of potassium, or chloral. If a fellow has the cramps here is chlorodyne ready at hand, or if he has caught cold and feels rheumatic we furnish him with a salicylic acid pill of from two to five grains with his toddy. To tell you the truth, if this business keeps on in the way it has taken of late years it won't be long before a bartender ought to be obliged to pass an examination before the State Board of Pharmacy. Talk about whisky being poison to the human system! Why, it affects aren't a marker beside those of the drugs we deal out in connection therewith. Still the demand has grown to such proportions that I might safely say one-third the profits of a prosperous saloon came from the knowledge of people that it has a semi-drug store attachment."

"How about absinthe?"

"There's not much of a call for it. Sometimes a man envelopes an absinthe frappe and thinks he's done something real desperate, but the same person may absorb three or four laudanum cocktails every day and look upon that feat simply as a matter of course."

A FRIGHTFUL SKIN DISEAS.

Messrs. STEVENS & BRUNER, Monroe, N. C.

Dear Sirs.—About two months ago, on your recommendation, I bought a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, one box of Cuticura Salve, and one cake of Cuticura Soap, for my son, aged thirteen years, who has been afflicted with eczema for a long time, and I am pleased to say that I believe the remedies have cured him. His sufferings were intense, his head being nearly raw, his ears being gone except the gristle, and his body was covered with sores. His condition was frightful to behold. The sores have now disappeared, his skin is healthy, eyes bright, and he is in good condition, and is working every day. My neighbors are witnesses to this remarkable cure, and the undersigned is pleased to be referred to or write me, or any of my neighbors.

Yours truly, S. STEPHENSON.

THE POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO.:

Gentlemen.—Mr. Wm. S. Stephenson, of this county brought his son to town to-day to let me see him, and to show me what Cuticura Remedies had done for him. This is the case referred to in our letter to you some time ago. To look at the boy now, one would suppose that there had never been anything the matter with him.—seems to be in perfect health. We have written and published before what his father has to say about the matter—wrote it just as he dictated.

We are selling quite a quantity of Cuticura Remedies and hear nothing but praises for them. We regard the Cuticura Remedies the best in the market, and will do all we can to promote their sale. Yours truly,

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh, yet but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the brain lining is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing vitiated, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvelous curative power of Sanford's Radical Cure manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

WARM WAVES

Are rolling in. You can't escape them; but you can escape the sleepless nights, loss of appetite, and languid feeling that result from draining the nervous force by muscular or mental exertion in summer's torrid days. The use of Paine's Celery Compound, that great nervestrengthener, will at once brace the nervous system, and fortify it against the attacks of summer debility. This preparation is a medicine—not a drink. It is a scientific combination of the best tonics, giving lasting benefit to body and brain, and has brought new life and health to thousands whose weakened nerves were the cause of their many ills. It is especially valuable at this season, when feeble persons are so liable to mistake, a disease which is nearly always fatal. Paine's Celery Compound, by restoring perfect health, almost entirely removes the liability to this dread disease. If you feel the effects of summer's heat, you can't afford to delay another day before gaining the vitality only obtained by the use of this great medicine. *Sold by Druggists. $1.00. The dealers in campaign goods will evidently do a flourishing business this year. The show windows of a number of the establishments in this city are already crowded with goods of this character and the sales in them have been larger than they have ever been before, at this period of the campaign. Political enthusiasm will run high and everybody almost, will have some kind of a political emblem. There is surely variety enough. Badges, watch charms, sleeve buttons, neckties, handkerchiefs and a score of other things have been selected by all the parties for their followers and one will be puzzled to select from among them his insigma of political preference.

The item in yesterday's SENTINEL concerning a child beating by one of the ministers of this city, was a misrepresentation of the facts, for the father was simply trying to apply some medicine to his bruised face, which it had received from a fall. Parents should certainly be conceded the right to administer medical aid to their children.

Last evening, from 5 to 8 o'clock, Miss Katie MacDougal, of West Wayne street, tendered a reception to her lady friends in honor of her aunt and guest, Mrs. Frank MacDougal, of Ottawa, Ont. It was one of the fashionable events of the season, and was socially and intellectually brilliant. Miss MacDougal's home was delightfully arranged for the soiree. Signora Lapatina and Demsellis discoursed the musical programs, while the richness of floral adornments, the elegance of the appointments and exceptional charmoter of the favors, added a recherche air to the occasion, very rarely, if ever, surpassed in social annals.

E. G. SMEDLY!

A Popular and Widely Known Boot and Shoe Salesman Sends a Bullet Into His Brain at Charubusco.

"E. G. Smedly is dead."

Who was prepared for such an announcement, or dreamt of such a thing?

It is the unexpected that happens, however, for this morning, at a small hotel in Charubusco, a village in Whitley county, sixteen miles northwest of Fort Wayne, Mr. Smedly killed himself.

He went to Charubusco yesterday on a business trip for Dewey, Rogers & Co., wholesale boot and shoe merchants of Toledo. He interviewed his customers and in the evening retired to his room in the Stiles house.

No act of his elicited the slightest concern until 8 o'clock this morning, when the landlady of the house heard him move about and finally exclaim, as if in awful agony, "My God! Must I suffer this way any longer."

All was quiet then and no one heeded the man's words until the sharp report of a pistol startled the silence of the night and brought the inmates of the hotel quickly to their feet.

The dull, heavy fall of a man followed in an instant and it did not require but an other moment to surmise the trouble.

The door to the room was forced in and on the carpeted floor lay the lifeless form of Edward G. Smedley. There was a gaping wound on the right side of his skull, from which blood and brain substance slowly oozed and pillowed the dead man's head. A self-cocking revolver near by, with one chamber empty, did the work.

Messages and messengers were sent to this city and the news of the suicide spread with the wind. Mr. Smedly's wife died some ten years ago, but his son, aged 14, and his daughter aged 12 years reside with Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Woodward, on East Main street and to them the intelligence was a hard blow.

Mr. Smedly was in the city, with his children over Sunday and left home yesterday on his business tour. He was in a gloomy frame of mind, but ate breakfast and said good bye with usual fervor. His troubles, however, were his own.

Some years ago Mr. Smedly left the employ of Carnahan, Hanna & Co., of this city, to travel for Dewey, Rogers & Co., a boot and shoe house at Toledo. He succeeded Mr. Tom Watson in this territory, and as he was a good salesman, he commanded a good salary. Mr. Smedly was companionable and occasionally drank with his friends. A year ago July 15, last, however, he resolved to not touch or taste liquor for a year. He kept his vow to the hour, but has been enjoying his annual vacation for two weeks past. This led to some excesses and Mr. Smedly was taken ill. Dr. Geo. L. Greenawalt was called and afforded his patient such relief as to warrant him going out on the road.

It is probable that he suffered a recurrence of the nervous trouble at Charubusco and in the consequent agony lost his reason and his life.

Mr. Smedly was a whole-souled, pleasant gentleman. He was universally liked and his fund of dry humor and quaint pleasantries made him a favorite far and wide. He was forty years of age.

His parents, now upwards of eighty years, reside at Ashfield, Mass. His brother, James Smedly, resides at New York City. He has two married sisters residing in the east. They have all been notified.

This morning Mr. M. E. Woodward left for Charubusco in Peltier's morivary vehicle and will bring the remains to this city this evening.

HIS LIFE INSURANCE.

Mr. Smedly held three insurance policies on his life. They aggregate $15,000 and will be paid, as they are in the old line companies that do not except suicides. He held an accident policy, but it will not count. The money will go to Mr. Smedly's children.

Prof. Loisette Wins in Court.—Literary Piracy Condemned.

(From New York Sun.)

"Chief Justice Van Brunt, holding the Special term of the Supreme Court yesterday on the application of Nelson Smith and Col. Robert G. Ingersoll, made the injunction in favor of Prof. Loisette, restraining George S. Fellows from publishing his Memory System perpetual.

"Dr. William A. Hammond, Daniel Greenleaf Thompson, author of a work on psychology, and several other professors testified that Prof. Loisette's system was original, being a new departure in the education of the memory. The Court ordered Fellows to deliver up to Prof. Loisette the stereotype plates and all the books in his control. Over nine thousand copies of the pirated edition were delivered up yesterday."

We are informed that full details will be furnished in the prospectus sent post free by Prof. A. Loisette, 237 Fifth Avenue, New York.

A Mr. Oppler who boards at Ray's boarding house, on Columbia street, called at this office to-day looking for a printer whom he declares confiscated a new pair of shoes at his headquarters last evening.

BUMPS OF THE RAIL.

Personal Points and Miscellaneous News Picked Up Around the Railroads and Manufactories.

The shops are dull.

The railroads are quiet.

Excursions are commencing again.

The Grand Rapids is having a good travel to Rome City.

The Nickel Plate will run their excursion to Niagara Falls on the 13th inst.

Engineer McCarty, of the Nickel Plate, is out of the city on his vacation.

Mr. F. H. Barnard, the agent of the Nickel Plate, has gone to Duluth on business.

There were eighty persons on the excursion of the Grand Army posts to Warsaw this morning.

Two new floors of men, eight in all, have been put to work in the car wheel department of the Base foundry and machine works.

The railroads were very dull and devoid of news this morning and nothing of interest could be gathered at the manufactories.

John Knapp, son of J. W. Knapp, a former engineer of the Wabash pumping house, is now a telegraph operator at St. Louis, Mo.

There were two excursion to-day. One was over the Nickel Plate to Lake Maxinkuckee and the other over the Pittsburg to Warsaw.

Messrs. J. H. Hobcook, sr., and J. K. Bradley, of the Pittsburg shops, went to Chicago yesterday to do some work for the company at that point.

The objecting Wabash bondholders are to be allowed to intervene in the foreclosure suit brought by the purchasing committee, and as the latter are not inclined to buy off the opposition, it seems that further delay and litigation are inevitable.

Freight men seem very sanguine that the business of the month which begins to-day show a handsome improvement over July just passed, and will exceed that of August, 1887. They base this belief on the large amounts of freight in sight, and which will naturally drift on to the market in the next thirty days.

It is stated officially that the association which insures railroad men against accident has, within the last eight days, been called upon more frequently to pay benefits than at any time in their history. June and early July were very prolific in railroad accidents, and nearly every railroad man now carries a policy in some one of the accident insurance associations.
